Convention Of Lions Sets Attendance Mark

TAMIMENT—A record number of delegates to the state convention of Pennsylvania Lions Clubs yesterday elected Paul W. Mahady of Latrobe as candidate for the office of Director of Lions International.

In other voting during the 35th annual state convention's closing sessions, delegates elected new governors for this state's 11 Lion districts.

Mahady defeated Robert L. Wolfgang of York and Thomas Howland of Philadelphia in the three-way race for the candidacy. The International Directors will be elected at an international convention in Chicago next month.

Successful candidates for district governor, where there were contests, were: A. Fred Manno of Media—District 14A; Malcolm Lovejoy of Bethel Park—District 14B; William Smith of Williamsport—District 14C; and Dominic DeAngelo of Taylor—District 14H.

District Governors
District governors elected without opposition were: Charles Mowrey of York—District 14C; Martin B. Shaeffer of Bowmanstown—District 14D; Claude Bradley of South Conestoga—District 14E; Paul Davidson of Springboro—District 14F; James Wales of Templeton—District 14J; Harvey Ritter of Allentown—District 14K; and Bernard Hartel of Allentown—District 14L.

The convention concluded last night with a traditional District Governors' Banquet. Featured speaker at the affair was Clarence L. Sturm of Manawa, Wis., second-vice president of Lions International.

The registration figure for this state level meeting stood at 2,835—a new record. Stroudsburg Lions Club, the host unit, said the previous record was 2,407 and was set seven years ago at Pittsburgh.

Resolutions stemming from business sessions held yesterday included:

A resolution by the Cabinet of District 14J which called for amendments to the Lions State Constitution and By-Laws for district governors to be elected at district conventions rather than state sessions.

Resolution
The resolution, if approved by Lions State Council, would permit each district to hold the district governor election annually prior to the state convention. It was forwarded to Council for consideration.

Members of the United Nations Committee passed a resolution calling for closer support to the United Nations by the Pennsylvania Association of Lions Clubs; and, that each October, all clubs devote one meeting to a program on or about the United Nations.

A resolution was also passed which called for the adoption of a state project on sight conservation and eye research.

Under provisions of the resolution, the State Council would be authorized to appoint a state project committee of six members. To permit it to function as a continuous committee it would be formed by:

Appointing two members to three year terms, two members to two year terms, and two members to one year terms. All future appointments would be for three year terms.

Speakers during yesterday's business sessions were Past President Lions International, Monroe L. Nute of Kennett Square, Pa., and Conrad A. Falvello of Hazleton, an International Director.

Bureau Of Roads Favors Shortway

BERTRAM Tallamy, chief of the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, yesterday said that his office has no intention of opposing early construction of the Keystone Shortway.

After an interview with Richardson Dilworth, Philadelphia mayor, and eight other Southeastern Pennsylvania officials, Tallamy again went on record saying that his office does not feel construction of the Shortway will adversely affect the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Before any "continuous trans-state route" is completed, however, Tallamy said, the Federal Government will make sure that existing facilities are not in unfair competition.

At the meeting with Tallamy, Dilworth assumed the position that Philadelphia's highway needs should come first.

Dilworth Statement
Dilworth said the Keystone Shortway would do nothing but "satisfy the curiosity of bears."

With Dilworth was a group of Eastern Pennsylvania financiers and business executives. They repeated a fear that the Shortway would "jeopardize" collection of tolls on the Turnpike and "divert" traffic from the west to New York.

Dilworth maintains that he and his group are "trying to prevent construction of the Shortway on a crash basis." He has said that he feels a system of "priorities" should be drawn up by the Pennsylvania State Highways Department.

Highways Department officials announced weeks ago that such a list is in the process.

Earlier this week Rep. Francis E. Walter, U.S. Congressman from the Monroe-Northampton district, released the text of a letter from Tallamy.

In that letter Tallamy reported that the eastern and western thirds of the Shortway routing have already been approved by the Bureau of Public Roads.

The Shortway is a 300-mile road extending from Stroudsburg in the east to Sharon in the west. It is intended to be a free highway.

Tallamy, in his letter to Rep. Walter, repeated a belief that "by the time of the completion of this route (the Shortway) such traffic as might be diverted from the Pennsylvania Turnpike would not jeopardize its financing."

He pointed out that new roads coming into Pennsylvania and connecting with the Turnpike from the west, north, south and east "will bring huge volumes of traffic to that highway."

The Shortway has been approved by the Bureau of Public Roads as part of the Interstate system "because of the inter-regional and local importance" of the proposed highway, Tallamy said.

Other foes of the five-year extension contended that the U.S. textile industry is threatened with doom and that "Communist Russia is beginning to dictate the domestic policy" of America.

McGonigle Backs State Shortway

By Leonard Randolph
WHERE DOES Arthur McGonigle stand, right now?
As the Republican nominee for governor, the Reading pretzel manufacturer told this reporter last night that:

1—He believes the Keystone

Shortway is an "actuality" but he doesn't want to see Pennsylvania Turnpike bondholders lose any money.

2—He thinks that the Republican party will be harmonious for the coming campaign.

3—He has corresponded with Harold Stassen and he feels sure Stassen will support the GOP ticket "wholeheartedly" this Fall.

4—He hopes to talk with former governor John Fine, Luzerne County GOP boss, sometime within the near future.

5—He feels that there are "certain fundamental differences between the two parties"—Republican and Democratic—and he is determined to uphold his own party.

Last night McGonigle attended the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Restaurant Assn. Interviewed at a cocktail party tossed by the PRA at Shawnee Inn, McGonigle renewed his support of the Shortway.

But he went on to urge support for a "highway of the future" which would connect the lake port of Erie and the ocean port of Philadelphia. This highway, he said, should cross Pennsylvania diagonally and would "protect the best interests" of the two major ports of the Commonwealth.

"Very few people realize how the port of Erie has grown," he said, at one point. "But it is an important port and one we've got to consider, along with Philadelphia and the rest of the state."

He expressed opposition to cutting revenue for the Pennsylvania Turnpike. But then he went on to say that "by the time the Shortway is finished it should have little effect on the Turnpike."

"My main concern with the Turnpike is the bondholders," he said. "By the time the Shortway is finished, I think we should have made arrangements to pay off those bonds."

"There are a lot of widows who have invested in those bonds," he said. "And I don't want to see them cheated out of their money."

He has a strong conviction that the Republican party will present a front of unity at the polls this coming November. He has already had assurances of cooperation and support from Harold Stassen and from "Livingood and Vaughn," he said.

In his "correspondence" with Harold Stassen, he said, he has found that we "see eye to eye on most things". He feels sure that Stassen will support the GOP regular ticket this Fall. Stassen was an "independent" candidate for the Republican nomination in the recent primary.

He was unsure of what might happen with John Fine. Never noted for orthodoxy in political circles and more and more, recently, an unpredictable force in Pennsylvania party affairs, Fine "sat this one out" during the recent election, most observers feel.

Now, McGonigle says, he "hopes" to talk things over with Fine. But he has no direct assurance, as yet, that the talks will take place.

TEERING OFF FOR A CAMPAIGN Republican nominee demonstrates exactly how he does not intend to start his drive for the Governor's seat in Harrisburg. Using a crooked "prop" club from the Shawnee Inn golf shop operated by Harry Obitz and staff, GOP gubernatorial aspirant Arthur McGonigle gives his all for benefit of press camera. McGonigle Puts Business Practices Into Force During Campaign For Governorship

By Leonard Randolph

IF THERE IS ANY real danger in Arthur McGonigle's life it is that he may come to believe, irrevocably, that he is "the next governor of Pennsylvania."

It is a strange thing, but in the early rump-caucus days of the campaign, there are so many people at cocktail parties and the like who are eager to shake Art McGonigle's hand and call him "Governor."

The fact that the general election is still four months away and the voice of the people still has not been heard, like the turtle throughout the land, does not seem to deter them one whit.

Last night, as he attended the annual convention of the Pennsylvania Restaurant Assn. at Shawnee Inn, Art McGonigle had the good sense and the social grace to wince now and then as his hosts introduced him as "Governor."

If anyone has an idea of the stiff rigors of campaigning, the man is probably not Arthur McGonigle. He is, first of all, a businessman.

But he has been a tough businessman. He has, among other things, built a ramshackle and failing pretzel business to one of the top industries in the Reading area.

Today, wearing a pretzel-shaped pin on his lapel, he can move from group to group and talk politics. He can joke lightly with Ken Nichols of Amityville and Marshalls Cheek (summer home where the Nichols' spend their weekends) and move

De Gaulle's Plan Hit By Challenge

PARIS (AP)—Premier de Gaulle's plan for peace and a new way of life for Algeria was boldly challenged yesterday by the French-Algerian revolutionary junta. It proposed for one thing that De Gaulle junk his Cabinet.

The junta's action in turn ran into opposition from Gen. Raoul Salan, the man named by De Gaulle as military and civilian boss over Algeria.

The All-Algeria Committee of Public Safety, in a closed meeting in Algiers, called for what it termed the erasure of French political parties and in their place a real Government of Public Salvation in Paris.

Paris political circles looked on the action as the most dangerous De Gaulle has faced since he took power June 1.

Safety Committee

On his tour of Algeria last week, De Gaulle had told the public safety committees to get out of politics and confine themselves to working for the integration of the Algerian and European populations.

The De Gaulle government had no immediate comment on the committee action.

The committee resolution was transmitted to De Gaulle with the approval of Gen. Jacques Massu, key figure in the May 13 uprising against the Paris government. A copy of the motion first distributed by the press said: "Approved by Gen. Raoul Salan."

A junta spokesman also told reporters Salan personally had approved the action.

Several hours later, however, the spokesmen distributed copies marked only "Received by Gen. Salan." He said Salan had not signed the resolution, but "judged it as receivable and agreed that it represented the thinking of the people in Algeria."

He said the earlier approved version was a typing error.

The spokesman also said the part of the motion urging the abolition of political parties was only meant as an appeal for a party truce until De Gaulle's firm establishment in power.

22 Safe In Plane Crash

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—An Argentine airliner with three engines on fire ditched in the surf near a Brazilian island yesterday. All 22 aboard leaped out and waded ashore.

As they raced up the beach away from danger, the plane exploded and burned in the shallows.

Some were injured, but none dangerously.

The four-engine DC6 developed engine trouble soon after leaving Rio's International Airport for Buenos Aires on a flight from Europe.

Good Morning!

Favors returned are as inspiring as an answered prayer.

He had a court order for the dog owner to show cause why the animal should not be destroyed. The owner wasn't home. The dog was. Gates was treated at a hospital for bites on the leg.

Macmillan In Conference With Dulles

WASHINGTON (AP)—British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and Secretary of State Dulles conferred for 2½ hours yesterday, chiefly about new ways to help needy nations.

"We had very good talks," Macmillan told reporters at the State Department. He added: "We covered a wide range of topics, mainly economics."

Macmillan left the State Department for the British embassy to prepare for a White House "working dinner," where the chief topic was reported to be the question of suspension of nuclear tests.

Key Plan

The chief clue to the dinner topic was the line-up of guests. The White House has been maintaining a tight blanket of secrecy about subjects under discussion. But both Lewis L. Strauss and Sir Edwin Plowden, atomic chiefs in the two countries, were on the dinner guest list.

Dulles told his news conference, prior to meeting Macmillan, that economic matters were uppermost on yesterday's schedule.

"I hope this afternoon we will be able to break some new ground," Dulles told a news conference before meeting with Macmillan.

A key plan before them, it was learned, proposes a kind of multinational Marshall Plan.

Crews Fight Flood In Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Disaster crews manned the levees to fight the worst flood since 1950 along the middle Wabash River yesterday. Indiana's third straight day of violent storms and cloudbursts.

Dozens of families fled their homes in the Wabash Valley from Wabash and Marion west to Lafayette, and serious flooding was forecast as far downstream at Terre Haute and Merom.

Upper Reaches

Flood stages almost as high as in 1950 were expected by today on the upper reaches of the White River's west fork at Muncie and Anderson, but minor flooding was forecast at Indianapolis and downstream.

Red Cross disaster crews helped families flee the flooding Wabash River at Wabash, Peru and Logansport.

Eisenhower Urges Talks On Tests

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower proposed yesterday to open nuclear test talks with the Soviet Union at Geneva on July 1. Secretary of State Dulles said any agreement to halt testing would have to cover Communist China as well as the Soviet Union.

The official injection of the Red China issue raised potentially great difficulties in the way of negotiating a test ban. Dulles himself told a news conference Communist China "doesn't seem to want to have outsiders in its territory." Red China is not known to have developed nuclear weapons.

Eisenhower made his proposal for the date, place and makeup of scientific talks on policing any test suspension agreement in a letter to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. The letter was made public by the White House.

Accepting earlier proposals made by Khrushchev, Eisenhower said scientific experts on "our side" would come from the United States, Britain and France and "on your side" from Russia, Czechoslovakia and Poland.

He said the discussions should begin about July 1, he held in Geneva, and he devoted to studying "the possibility of detecting violation of a possible agreement on suspension of nuclear tests."

Dulles met reporters in his weekly news conference shortly after the letter was made public.

The Red Cross established an office here.

GDS Holds 42nd Annual Graduation

NEWFOUNDLAND — "Upon you rests the future," Dr. Peter K. Emmons, pastor emeritus of Westminster Presbyterian Church, Scranton, told members of the Class of 1958 during the 42nd annual commencement exercises of Greene-Dreher-Sterling Joint School in the school auditorium.

Using as his text, Ecclesiastes 10:10: "If the iron is blunt, and one does not whet the edge, he must put forth more strength, but wisdom helps him to succeed," Dr. Emmons reminded the graduates according to God's way.

On the theme "The Wisdom Way to Success," he said: "Make a life patterned after the will of God and fulfill His purpose. Learn all you can wherever you go, but take God with you every step of the way."

People of God — "Remember: the way to perpetuate our civilization is not to build a better Sputnik, but to build men and women of God. You must want to understand the workings of the universe, but you must not let science crowd God out of your lives."

Student speakers during the program on the general theme, "Soviet Russia," were Shirley Simons, who discussed the people of Russia and their way of life; Judy Green, whose topic was the schools of Russia, "Education for Conquest vs. Education for Living"; and Patricia McLain, who spoke on the government of Russia.

The invocation was asked by Rev. Harry C. Roof, pastor of the LaAnna-Greentown-South Sterling Methodist Church Circuit. Ronald Robacker, president of the Class of 1958, gave the welcoming address, and the graduates were introduced individually by Supervising Principal Leland Cramer.

Monroe County YMCA Hires Physical Education Director

Chapman To Start At $4,200

JACK CHAPMAN, superintendent of the Youth Hostel at LaAnna, was elected physical director of the Monroe County YMCA last night at the June meeting of the board of directors at the YMCA.

Chapman, a graduate of East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, was hired at a starting salary of $4,200 a year. He will take up his new duties Sept. 1.

He is conducting a recreation program at Newfoundland this summer in addition to heading up the hostel program at LaAnna. His wife is assisting him in the latter position. They are the parents of two young children.

Chapman, a veteran of U.S. Army service, was recommended for the position by the personnel committee with Earl F. Groener as chairman.

Saturday Dances
Mrs. Russell Scheller, co-chairman of the youth activities committee, reported the Saturday night dances will be continued until Aug. 1 under the direction of John R. Wilson, general secretary, after which they will be discontinued for one month to permit the cleaning and refinishing of the gymnasium floor.

A youth group will be formed to assist the new physical director and other Y staff members in supervising the dances when they are resumed in September. Mrs. Scheller said. Further details regarding the new arrangements will be announced later.

Thomas Kistler reported that the building fund indebtedness had been reduced by $1,600 in the last month, leaving $14,600 still to be paid. He said letters will be sent out to all persons who are delinquent on their building fund pledges asking that they make all or part payment on amounts outstanding.

Tom Wiswell, billed as the free-style world checker champion, will present a checker-chess demonstration at the YMCA on Thursday night, June 26.

In announcing the event W. C. Peterson, program committee chairman, invited the public to witness the exhibition and to participate in the competition. Wiswell will play, simultaneously, any number of checker players who wish to challenge him, and then do the same with chess enthusiasts.

Peterson also outlined a Fall program for adults which will include a public speaking course, bridge lessons, dancing classes, lecture series, organization of a checker club and a religious series.

General Secretary, Wilson praised E. Kenney Crothers, retiring chairman of the Barrett Branch YMCA Board, for the fine work he has done while in office. Crothers responded, saying the board is in good hands with young, aggressive leaders in charge.

Loring Cramer, vice president, conducted the meeting in the absence of Alex Bensinger.

Buck Hill Falls Airman To Be Honored For Rescue Job

AIRMAN THIRD CLASS Blake E. Frasier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Blake Frasier of Buck Hill Falls, Pa., will be awarded a certificate from the Air Force for his outstanding assistance in aiding an aircraft in distress.

Thomas Wayman Helas, pilot of a Beech Bonanza on a flight from Neuchatel, Switzerland to Landsend, England asked for immediate assistance on the international distress radio frequency.

Airman Frasier, Control Tower Operator on duty, heard the call and learned, that the pilot had only 15 minutes of useable fuel remaining because of a mechanical malfunction. The pilot at that time was uncertain of his position to the nearest landing field, due to his flight between layers of clouds.

Equipment

By using direction finding equipment, Airman Frasier was able to direct the pilot to a safe landing within six minutes after receiving the distress call.

After landing, the pilot personally came to the Control Tower to thank Frasier for the assistance given him.

Airman Frasier attended Barrett High School before entering the Air Force in 1956.

Airman Frasier is presently assigned to the 1994th Airways and Air Communications Service at Laon Air Force Base, France.

McGonigle Makes Friends In Campaign For Governor

"I think we're going to give 'em a helluva fight in November. I think people are fed up with politics."

And why did he finally decide to accept the challenge of running for the State's top office?

"I'm in this thing honestly because of my children," he says. "When we were just sitting around, talking, one day, I started griping about what was wrong with government and politics and one of my kids asked me: 'Well, what are you doing about it?'"

"So here, I am, trying to do something about it," he went on.

He says he's worried about "our children becoming cynical." He thinks they're asking themselves, at 18 or 19 "What are our parents doing to preserve the American way of life?"

"If we're disinterested in politics; if we don't pay any attention, then doesn't this create a vacuum in which anything can happen? In which the union leaders and the politicians can just take over," he says.

And then he makes it clear that he's talking as a "grandfather of three-four by the end of this year."

And he says he's "not in this thing for personal gain—not at all."

Whatever else may be said for him, Art McGonigle is an accommodating man. He is eager to please.

When he meets a representative of the press, he tries his best to be helpful and cooperative. He has learned a good many valuable lessons as the manager of a business, which was once dying and he leaves the distinct impression that he has learned them very well.

Yesterday he could take time out to pose on the Shawnee putting green with an outlandishly-outfitted and crowded club (totally unsuited for putting, of course) and make everyone feel that he enjoyed every second of it.

He can shake hands with hundreds of people and never tire. He can listen to the loudest of jokes and still smile. And he can travel as well—perhaps better—than the next man.

He is, in short, a man who is determined to do his damnedest to win an election because he believes it must be won.

But he still has the common sense and good humor to grin and duck his head a little when someone grabs his hand and pumps enthusiastically and gushes: "I'm so happy to meet you, Governor."

Right now Art McGonigle leads the list of men in the field who know that Harrisburg is several miles away.

But there is still the danger that well-wishers may brainwash him into thinking the trip has been made and the campaign is over.

Where To, Graduates?

It's commencement time again, and thousands of high schools and universities are turning millions of graduates out into the world to earn a living.

We wish we could report that jobs are going begging, but unfortunately that is not the case. Only in specialized fields where the labor supply is short will large numbers of graduates find good jobs awaiting them.

There are fine opportunities open in other fields, to be sure, but temporarily they are not likely to be as plentiful as in former years and will be filled by the cream of the graduating crop.

The fact that everyone who has just come into possession of a diploma will not be able to find employment in his chosen profession is not necessarily an indictment of our educational system. Rather, it is a reflection of the irregular economic pattern which our free enterprise system follows.

Many graduates who cannot find jobs will be wondering what to do to improve their lot in life. The best advice we can offer is to continue their schooling, at least until better times arrive.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Flight To The Suburbs

Great truths often are overlooked by those who live in close proximity to them. The old adage about the forests and the trees can be applied, for example, to the implications of America's flight to the suburbs.

From a South African college professor has come a warning to American males.

Prof. M. G. Marwick, head of the Department of Social Anthropology and African Administration at Witwatersrand University, claims that women rule life in the suburbs.

"One of the nearest approaches to matriarchy man has ever known is in the suburban matriarchy of our own times," this expert says. "The combined effect of a democratic ideology and the absence at work for long pe-and more opportunities present themselves.

The high school graduate should go on to college, trade school or become an apprentice in a vocation which promises a bright future. Such a course might not bring high financial benefits immediately, but does offer more over the long haul.

College graduates who are unable to find positions suited to their training might do well to enroll for post-graduate courses leading to even better jobs than they are now qualified to fill. A master's or a doctor's degree commands higher salaries in more responsible jobs than a bachelor's degree, so both are worthy goals for any graduate.

Our world is becoming more complex every day. The person without a good education is at a decided disadvantage in trying to compete with his fellow man.

It would be wise, therefore, for the young graduate to further his education instead of sitting idly on the sidelines waiting for economic conditions to improve.

Labor Ethics

The difficulties which face the labor unions in the automobile situation arise from the fact that Walter Reuther, who is a shrewd strategist, made a mistake in talking too loud and saying too much, at a wrong time, when about 800,000 cars are unsold and the automobile companies can well afford to wait out a season. In fact, they will be much better off if they have a strike.

Therefore Reuther is wise in not being provoked into a strike. On the other hand, this is not a time when public opinion will support any labor union in any adamant position during a period of recession and particularly after the scandals which Congressional committees are disclosing.

Many of the labor leaders have missed the point about the scandals. They still believe that only the enemies of labor call attention to the corruption in the unions. Actually, the rank and file of the unions are thoroughly disgusted with the thieving and the high-living of any labor union leaders.

Some of these fellows imitate not the decent elements among the industrialists but the hoodlums who throw around hundred dollar bills as though they were green grass. For instance, this statement made by A. J. Hayes, president of the International Association of Machinists and the leader of the Ethical Practices Committee of the A.F.L.-C.I.O., is all wrong in the approach to the subject:

"Slanted Publicity" "I also think I would be less than honest if I did not tell you at the outset that many of us in the labor movement believe that much of the clamor that has been set off by disclosures of graft and corruption in some trade unions — arises not from a sincere regard for the welfare of the individual members of those unions — but from a deeper and more devious desire to see the whole union movement smashed wide open."

Therefore, I intend to discuss this subject with particular reference to the slanted publicity that has attended the McClellan Committee hearings. And I want to explore the implications of some of the legislative proposals that have grown out of them." Prior to 1936, many Americans thought that it would be preferable for the unions to be destroyed, particularly after the syndicalistic sit-down strikes in the automobile and other industries. In 1938, the labor union is integrated in American industry.

On the other hand, feather-bedding, leader-corruption, the tie-in between crooked labor leaders and crooked industrialists, the infiltration of labor unions by gangsters have caused a re-evaluation of the freedom of labor union activity until there is a sentiment for legislation more effective than the Taft-Hartley Law, not to curb unionism but to eliminate illegal and indecent practices.

Labor unions can no more police themselves than corporations can. For the corporations, there is the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, the Clayton Law, the ICC, FCC, FTC, SEC, and a large number of laws involving conspiracies, frauds, false advertising, etc. Nevertheless there is still corruption and impropriety among corporations as the plethora of take-overs and the rigging of the stock market upward and downward indicate.

What is required is a rigid trade union law, a strict system of enforcement, with the rights of union members in their unions and of non-union members in their jobs protected by law. That will not mean perfection because there will always be corrupt and improper enforcement of any law, unless the people, and especially the newspapers, as representing public opinion, are vigilant.

Often so-called labor union statesmanship is so obsessed with the need for popularity among union members that it forgets that leaders have the responsibility of leading.

For instance, the recent amalgamation of the United Press and the International News Service is a result of high costs in a service industry where competition could only mean lower prices for better service. As the costs rose, the service deteriorated and the price for the service rose.

Obviously, not this year or last but for 10 years or more, there has been no particular need for three such services but the I.N.S. might have survived if it could have cut charges. With wages and fringe benefits rising, this third medium of news-gathering out-priced itself and therefore had to die.

And so it died and several hundred persons are out of work. Where is the statesmanship in that?

Inside Washington

S. S. Hike Opposed By Byrd

Washington — The House Ways and Means Committee is expected to start hearings soon on Social Security legislation, now that the reciprocal trade bill is out of the way. Proponents think there is a good chance the House in this election year will increase Senator Byrd benefits—and the Social Security tax—and make several other long-needed revisions. Increased Social Security will have a rougher time in the Senate, however. Chairman Harry Byrd (D), Virginia, of the Senate finance committee, has let advocates know he doesn't think this is the year (if any is) to increase Social Security. However, there may be enough pressure in the Senate to override the economy-minded senator.

No subject brings a more constant flow of mail into senators' offices than Social Security—partly because the old folk who are living on it have more time than most people to write congressmen. Also many members of Congress feel the benefits should at least be increased enough to make up for the rise in the cost of living since the last increase in 1956.

Chances are zero, however, for the AFL-CIO-backed measure to provide free hospitalization and surgical benefits, out of the Social Security funds, for persons receiving pensions. The American Medical Assn. is dead set against it.

Labor leaders are not discouraged, however, and hope by the slow build-up method to get it through in 1960 when both parties will have their eye on the old-folk vote. They argue that it is badly needed since elderly people's biggest worry is medical bills and private companies won't sell them health insurance.

But this one thing I do, I press toward the goal for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Philippians 3:13-14.

Many of our high school graduates have decided on college educations. But, for those who remain undecided, our advice is to continue your education. You must have a college diploma today if you plan to go anywhere.

But, to all high school graduates we present our special congratulations and offer best wishes for future years.

Robert S. Allen Reports...

Cabinet Deadlocked

Washington — President Eisenhower's cabinet is deadlocked over a new plan to give business and employment a potential shot in the arm.

Designed primarily to aid copper and other mining areas and manufacturing centers using these products, the outcome of the cabinet split over this anti-recession measure is anyone's guess.

Leading protagonists in this significant inner council clash are:

For — Secretary of State Dulles; Interior Secretary

Fred Seaton; Defense Mobilization Director Gordon Gray; White House economic adviser Gabriel Hauge; and Republican National Chairman Meade Alcorn.

Against — Treasury Secretary Robert Anderson; Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks; and Budget Director Maurice Stans.

Two key features of this backstage proposal are:

100,000 tons of copper to be withdrawn from defense stockpiles, and used to manufacture parts for shells, planes, missiles, and other munitions and equipment — for future use in the event of war.

175,000 tons of refined copper to be bought from U.S. mines at 27½ cents a pound. This price is somewhat higher than the prevailing market, but would stabilize this hardhit industry.

Estimated cost of this program is $150,000,000.

States that would immediately benefit from it are: Connecticut, Michigan, California, Nevada, Montana and Wyoming.

In all of them the GOP faces tough election battles this Fall.

Dulles may prove to be the determining factor in this cabinet controversy.

Secretary Anderson and Budget Director Stans are opposing the project chiefly for financial reasons; that it would further increase the already soaring federal deficit. Secretary Weeks is assailing it primarily as a "make work boondoggle."

In reply, Secretary Seaton and his group are justifying their proposal on both defense and business grounds. They contend it would quickly and powerfully stimulate lagging mining and manufacturing industries in important sections of the country, and at the same time build up valuable military inventories.

Transcending these domestic arguments, Secretary Dulles is pressing an urgent foreign issue as justification for this plan.

The suspended 4 cents-a-pound tariff on copper again becomes operative on July 1. Dulles wants that suspension continued for at least another year, as a major feature of the State Department's new drive to woo South American goodwill and to re-establish closer trade and other ties.

In the cabinet discussion, Dulles is warning that re-imposition of the copper tariff next month "will do incalculable harm to our relations with Chile and Peru."

Russia is already making alluring trade offers to both these countries. It is Dulles' view that unless the copper tariff is further suspended, Peru and Chile are "virtually certain to turn to the Soviet, which wants to buy their copper and other products."

For that reason Dulles is strongly advising the President to continue the copper tariff suspension for foreign policy purposes, and to approve the Seaton plan to aid domestic mining and manufacturing industries.

This stand is getting important backing from a bipartisan group of senators.

They include Senators: William Purtell (R., Conn.), Charles Potter (R., Mich.), George Malone (R.) and Alan Bible (D., Nev.), Frank Barrett (R., Wyo.), Mike Mansfield and James Murray (D., Mont.), Carl Hayden (D.) and Barry Goldwater (R., Ariz.), Henry Jackson (D., Wash.).

In a letter to Seaton they proposed, in effect, to support continuance of the tariff suspension in return for aid to domestic mining and manufacturing industries.

"The latest available statistics," states this letter, "indicate that such stockpile purchase program would effectively drain off domestic surplus copper inventories that hang like a black cloud over the market, forcing prices down to ruinous levels."

Try and Stop Me — by Bennet Cerf

Rep. Brook Hays tells about a congressman who was visited by an old friend, just down from their home district.

"Heard about Tom S. —?" asked the friend. "He's decided to run against you."

"I'm not surprised," snapped the congressman. "What would you expect from a liar and a crook?"

"Jim J. —" is also going to throw his hat in the ring," continued the friend.

"Another scoundrel!" fumed the congressman.

"Aw," said the friend, "I'm only kidding. S. — and J. — are two of your best friends, and asked to be remembered to you."

"What a foul trick you played!" chided the congressman.

Explains Supply, Demand

By Ken Duvall

Some pixie readers have called my attention to an advertisement which offers garments described as "40 percent wool, 60 percent virgin nylon," and they ask me, deadpan, as all — get-out, what is a virgin nylon?

Naturally, all girl nylons do not remain unmatte indefinitely, but under the urgings of her family she is likely to put it off as long as possible, which explains the large number of late marriages among them.

Of course, a few take a long look at marriage, decide against it and remain spinsters all their lives, or as long as they keep their hair. These are permitted to eat with the rest because, after all, they helped pay for it. If they go bald, they are drummed out of the tribe.

Lying on my stomach night after night in the woods, equipped only with my notebook and pen, I was able to observe one particularly interesting family, which had a large number of young daughters, frolicking in a moonlit clearing.

One night, I saw one daughter edging for the shadows and then she suddenly took off on tip-toe. Well, when it came bedtime and she was missed, you never saw such a commotion. It was after 3 a.m. when she returned and her father and mother were waiting up for her. Did she ever get what-for!

This over-protection of young daughters might seem severe, to our more or less human psychologists, but to the nylons it is practically a necessity — and will remain so as long as the fabric manufacturers mix wool and virgin nylon on a 40-60 ratio.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

I liked Arthur McGonigle, the Republican candidate for governor of Pennsylvania. Actually the person I went to Shawnee to see for myself was Mrs. McGonigle. She is in the hospital for a two-day rest after the rigors of campaigning in the primary.

But this much I can tell you about her anyway. She has a husband who appreciates her, and for any woman that is equivalent to the Croix de Guerre, the Legion of Honor, the DSC and the Order of the Garter.

She is the mother of three children and three grandchildren, and they've never had a vacation. Nevertheless, when Arthur was persuaded to run for Governor, she took a long look at all the pleasant things that grandparents, released from family pressure, can do together, and said firmly, "Well, if you're going to run, let's win."

Moreover, she's the only woman her husband knows who has read the Bible all the way through twice, and not skipping the begats. But there was another reason why I liked Mr. McGonigle besides the fact that he appreciates his wife.

That reason is that he tried his level best to finish a conversation, no matter how many important people were awaiting an introduction. Reporters, as a rule, are quite accustomed to making use of the crumbs that fall from the banquet table, to being sandwiched in between the soup and the salad, the master of ceremonies and the wielder of influence.

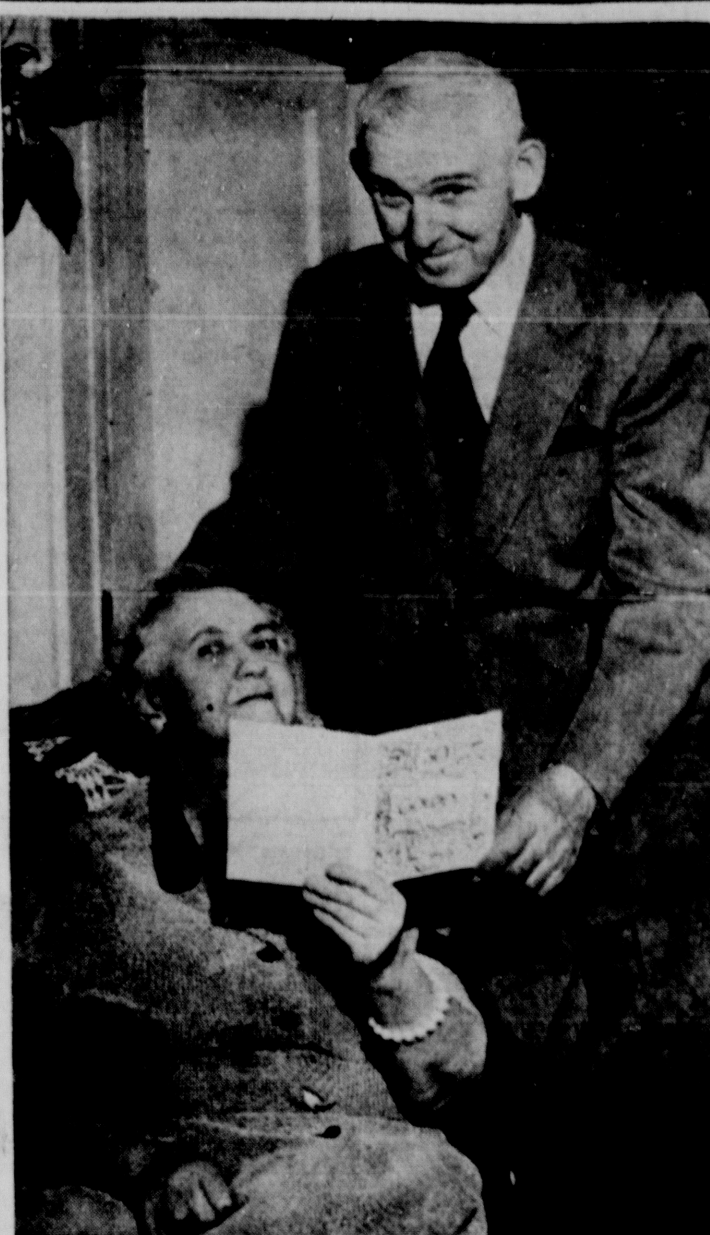

It's always pleasant to feel that the interviewee is concluding the interview with regret.

Lawn Party For 3-Year-Old

Carol Ann Denz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl J. Denz, celebrated her third birthday on June 7 with a garden party at her home, 782 Bryant St., Stroudsburg.

Her guests included Suzie McCluskey, Betsy McCluskey, Patty Overholtz, Ann Pine, Johnny Small, Curt Baymor, Randy Kueller and Cris Koehler. Refreshments and games were enjoyed.

At night, a turkey dinner was served in honor of Carol and her maternal grandfather, George H. Schaller of Hazleton, who was 73 years old on June 9.

Golden Wedding Today For Abels In First Home

Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. Abel, of 608 Sarah St., Stroudsburg, are observing their golden wedding anniversary today in the same house in which they have lived for the 50 years of their married life.

They were married on June 11, 1908, by Rev. S. G. Hutchinson, then pastor of the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Abel is a charter member of the Stroudsburg Chemical Co. No. 1. He has been retired for the past 12 years. They have one daughter, Mrs. Jack Baldwin.

No formal celebration has been planned because of the illness of Mrs. Abel.

If You Have The Will The Way Will Open Up

By Anne Heywood

Like an old refrain, the same old complaints continue to be made by all kinds of people in all parts of the country.

For example, hundreds of times in any given year, mothers who are over forty will write me some version of the following: "I'd love to know how to type, but I'm too old to learn," or "We'd love to send our daughter to college, but we can't afford it."

Found a Solution

That's why it was such a joy to get a letter from a woman in Springfield, New Jersey, who has successfully solved both of these problems.

She says: "We sent our daughter to college by working out a way to use her room profitably. I'm writing you about it, for I believe some of your readers might find our plan useful."

How Plan Worked

"For four years I had a school teacher as a boarder. I gave her my daughter's room, plus breakfast and dinner, and charged enough to make a nice profit. During Christmas, Thanksgiving and Easter vacations, when my daughter was home, the teacher visited her family. Also, I tried to get teachers who went to their folks for the weekend, so that my husband and I could have some weekend privacy."

"It was a wonderful way to make money to help pay the college bills."

"Now," this ingenious woman continues "at 56 I sat down before this strange machine, the typewriter, and told the very nice lady instructor that I wanted to learn to type. She was teaching an evening class which met twice a week and in which each of us went along at her own pace."

"The class consisted mostly of young girls, tired after their day's work as salesgirls, elevator operators and the like. I admired their grit and determination. Actually, I made out better than they did, for I had rented a typewriter and could practice two or three hours at home."

At 56, She Took a Course in Typing who has more irons in the fire and more diversity of interests. This is a perfect example of turning what Marie Ramey called "can't-ness," into "canness." This woman will always have enough money to buy what she wants because she thinks in terms of what's possible, instead of thinking in terms of what's impossible.

For further points on the subject of money, send me a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for my list of good books on the subject.

If you like styles becoming to YOU . . . you should be coming to ME!

Scouts Reach Maine On Trip To Nova Scotia

(Special to Daily Record from Scout Trip to Nova Scotia, Jennet Cramer reporting.)

Bradbury State Park, Maine, June 7 — We were "Happy on the Way" at 7:30 this morning. We went through New Jersey, New York, Mass., New Hampshire and Maine, traveling on many turnpikes. We ate lunch at a Howard Johnson restaurant.

As usual many members of the crew were asleep while others played cards, read, ate, talked or sang songs. We ate dinner at the most famous restaurant for hamburgers. While the girls ate their fill, the boys played on the swings, sliding board and seesaw.

Among the things we saw today was an ideal dairy, one of the best in the United States. We also stopped at L. L. Beans where we bought bug repellent and other necessities.

At present we are staying at Bradbury Mountain State Park in Maine. We took a short hike to the top of a small mountain to look at the ocean. Later we sat around the campfire, sang songs, and the boys and girls both took part in short plays before we retired to our sleeping bags under the stars.

Anna Logan Society Votes New Gifts To The Hospital

The Anna Logan Society of the General Hospital at the closing dinner meeting voted to purchase a third isotope for the hospital at a cost of $741.50, as well as an anesthesia pump costing $300.

It was a picnic supper held Monday night at the YMCA with families as guests and marked the beginning of a new administration with Mrs. Elwood Hintze as president.

As one of the closing acts of her administration Mrs. T. I. Metzgar, retiring president, was present for the dedication of a plaque to the Anna Logan Society for their Medical Library project. The Medical Library at the hospital was founded by the staff for the use of all hospital staff members. The Anna Logan Aux. has assumed the financial responsibility for having the Medical Journals bound and catalogued for the library each year.

In addition Mrs. Harry Sutton and Mrs. James Gavin of Anna Logan have been responsible for systematically arranging the library so that it may be used to its fullest advantage.

Mrs. Horace Butler and Mrs. Nelson Beers selected the plaque and the inscription.

Money for the purchase of equipment for the hospital and for the library services has been raised by the society through the summer card parties at Taminent and Pocono Manor, through making and selling 1,000 pounds of fruit cake and through the birthday calendars and sale of dish cloths and cloths. All of these projects have received public support.

The first of this summer's card parties will be held Tuesday, June 24 with Mrs. John Rumsey, Mrs. Evan Reese and Mrs. Joseph Viglione as co-chairmen. Tickets may be purchased at the following places:

Cancer Dressings, Christ Episcopal Church, 11 a. m. to 3 p. m.
Friday, June 13
Dinner, Practical Nurses Aid Club, Mayfair Restaurant, Scotia.
Pocono Grange, Tannersville, 8 p. m.

Everyone seems to approve—except, perhaps, my daughter, who very obviously feels that Mommie is, on occasion, a bit of a problem. The fact is undeniable, however, that IF I am going to become light headed in my old age, there is no better cause than the charities, including medical research, that will benefit from the Hadassah show.

Eventually I shall go back to being me and feel at home with myself once again. In the meantime, it's quite wonderful—for better OR worse—to look in the mirror and see something new besides a wrinkle. Anyway I was whistled at TWICE on my way to work Monday. Wonder what would have happened if I'd used the peroxide undiluted???

Maybe after reading the above you'll think I'm the one who needs a chaperone. But I filled that office myself on Saturday along with Bobby Westbrook and Sally Ferree when six charming and attractive girls vied for the crown of Miss Pocono Mountain. I felt sorry for the judges, for theirs was not an easy task. However, I came away from the college after the crowning of Zoe Machamer, Miss Tobyhanna Depot, feeling that their decision had been right.

Janice Wildrick was adorable when she sang "I'm In Love With a Wonderful Guy" . . . not until then had her real personality shown forth. Marilyn Pettinato proved at luncheon, up at High Point Inn, that she is a good conversationalist and an interesting girl. Genya Chaplinsky was impressively statuesque with the softest sable brown hair I've ever seen. Judith Whitenack entranced everyone with her very blonde hair and her smooth, youthfully shiny complexion, and Jane Romani has the most soulful dark brown eyes one could find anywhere, as well as controlled movements that are a joy to watch. But it was Zoe whom the judges selected . . . and one who had observed her bubbling vitality, her outgoing personality, and her poise when the hairs of her violin bow fringed out just at the conclusion of her spirited Polish Dance, could well understand why.

I watched with a lump in my throat when she appeared, a dream in white, as Bob Hartman sang "There She Is—Miss Poconos", hoping with all my heart that someday she will wear this same tune to the words "There She Is Miss America." I was glad indeed when Tom Waring broke the tension by saying, as the new queen was top-heavily crowned with laurel, "You look just lovely, dear—exactly like Hedda Hopper." There's no doubt about it, "Ike" Miller put on a good show—and deserves a full share of applause, which is just about all she does get out of it, unfortunately.

Pocono Grange To Be Host To Cherry Valley

Tannersville — Pocono Grange 1415 will meet Friday, June 13, at the Grange Hall at 8 p. m. when members of the Cherry Valley Grange will be the visitation grange.

Mrs. Robert Stadden, lecturer, has arranged the program which will follow the suggestion of the State Grange to "Know Your County."

The topic chosen by the Pocono Grange is the newly-developed Big Pocono State Park. Speakers will be Mrs. Esther Motts, a guard at the park, and district forester Eugene McNamara.

Refreshments will be served after the program.

chased from any member of the auxiliary. Reservations for lunch may also be made with Mrs. John Rumsey. There will be prizes and refreshments.

Acme Hose Aux.

The Ladies Aux. of the Acme Hose Co. will meet at the firehouse on Wednesday night. President Hunt expects a large attendance as final plans for the convention will be discussed.

Balance Found In Home Plan

THE REWARD for good space utilization is usually good size rooms or extras. This home is well balanced between the two.

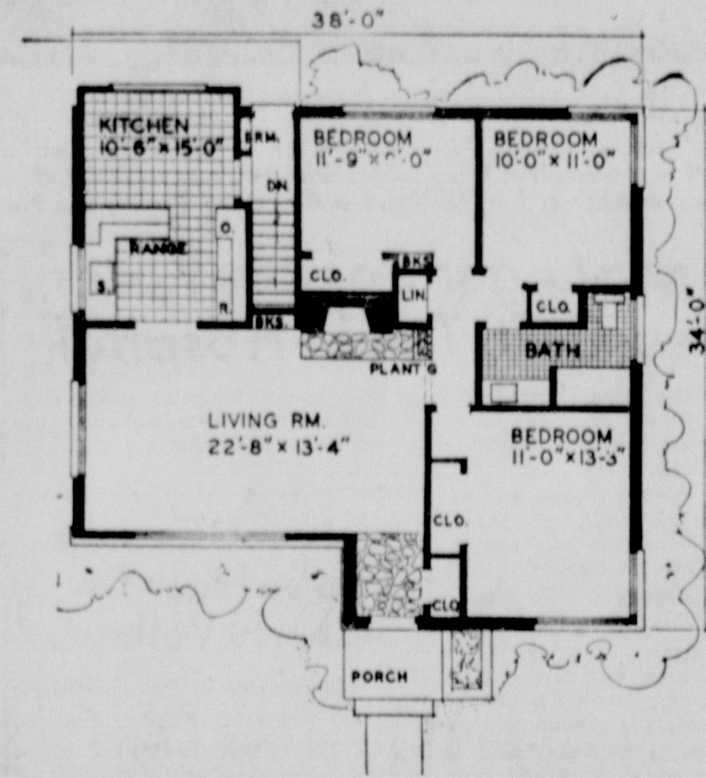

Boasting a generous sized fireplace and commanding a panoramic view of the front yard, the 22-foot living room is the home's pivot. One side of this room gets some traffic but it is well away from the main furniture groupings.

With the kitchen nook a separate area, there's good old-fashioned roominess in the kitchen. Contributing to this area's spaciousness is special accommodations for complete built-in equipment.

Bright Bedrooms

The three bright bedrooms are generous in size and are all designed to permit a variety of furniture groupings. Note also the especially generous wardrobe closets in the two larger bedrooms.

The bathroom is perfectly positioned — only a few steps away from three bedrooms and still easily reached from the daytime living areas. It too, comes in for its share of extras, with a bathtub and shower combined as well as a combination wash basin and dressing table—known as a vanity.

A full basement for hobby, storage, laundry and utility, as well as a second lavatory completes this charming plan.

This plan conforms to general FHA, VA and Building Code requirements. The plan contains 1,209 square feet and 21,897 cubic feet. Your builder or material supplier can give you the average cost per square or cubic foot in your area.

"Complete Building Plan, including Detail Sheet, Material List and Specification Guide for design number H-527 may be purchased for $9.75. For three additional sets add $25. You may also purchase a plan book showing 56 additional designs for 60 cents postpaid.

Closet Shortage Easily Overcome In Home

THERE'S NO need of walling just because your home hasn't enough closets!

Fortunately, this shortcoming can readily be cured, especially if there's a man in the house who can use a saw, hammer and other simple tools.

Even in a room without any closet at all, there must be a corner in which the ingenious craftsman can construct one rather easily with the aid of modern materials. If worst comes to worst, he can use the same construction principles outlined here to build a storage wall or a foot locker.

Materials often recommended for closets and similar built-ins are lumber and Masonite one-quarter-inch Presdwood, an all-wood panel which has a reputation for "having what it takes." Made by exploding wood chips, these panels have no grain or knots, they are strong, abrasion-resistant and easily painted.

Only Guide

The only guide needed for making built-ins like closets and cabinets is to use large enough framing, about which your dealer can advise, and quarter-inch Presdwood. The vertical framing members should be 16 inches apart. Joints of the panels may be "eased" slightly with a sand-block, file or beveling plane. A slight gap at the joints is recommended for good installations.

Sliding doors may be made in the home workshop, following the same construction principles, or one may install manufactured doors with Presdwood surfaces finished in long-wearing, beautiful colors. They're ideal especially for a storage wall.

There's no need to be "closet-hungry" when closets are so easily made! For a free plan on closet construction, write the Home Service Bureau, Suite 2037, 111 W. Washington St., Chicago 2, Ill.

Home Owners May Achieve Lasting Decor

HOME owners may achieve a permanent and easy-to-maintain wall and ceiling decor by applying plastic-finished Marlite planks and blocks. This pre-decorated hardboard material is an extremely versatile product since it is available in both colors and woodgrains.

The famed design firm of Raymond Loewy Associates styled 10 "companion colors" for the plank and block line. The lively yet muted hues of these colors, plus various wood patterns, all in soft-luster finish, make the panels suitable for anywhere in the house—living room, den, recreation room, bedroom, kitchen, dining room, bathroom or utility room.

The Loewy-formulated "companion colors" are foam and sage green, parchment, sun-light yellow, dusty pink, mist gray, light and dark aqua and polar white. Fine, fully finished woods are authentically reproduced in these wood patterns—striated and golden mahogany, birch, natural and silver walnut and cherry.

Marlite planks and blocks are designed for speedy application both in size and fastening features. Planks are 16 inches wide and eight feet long, and blocks are 16 inches square. These lightweight panels, three sixteenth-inch thick, have unique tongue-and-groove edges and special metal clips that simplify installation, which can be completed with just a saw, hammer, level and mastic. All nailing is hidden, leaving neat joints.

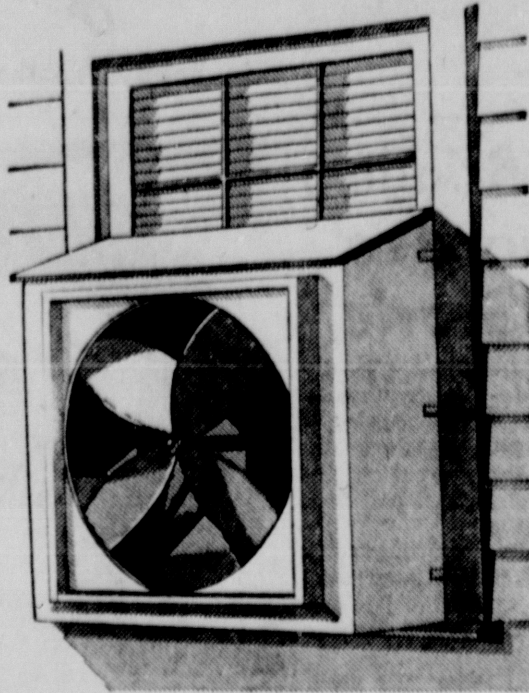

These planks and blocks can be applied to any wall—old or new, cracked or discolored, masonry or plaster. They may be applied directly to flat wall surfaces.

For individual and distinctive wall and ceiling treatments, planks and blocks may be combined, panels of more than one color mixed, or wood grain direction changed to create a "basketweave" effect. Planks and blocks may also be used effectively with the large, four-foot wide Marlite panels.

Characteristic of Marlite paneling is a smooth, durable plastic finish which is fused to a Masonite tempered hardboard base by means of a high-heat baking process.

The surface will resist moisture, grease, heat, acids, stains, wear and other causes of deterioration, and can be wiped clean with a damp cloth. Painting or refinishing is never necessary.

Home Air Circulator Turns Summer Heat Into Breezes

WHY swelter when you can actually do something about the way the hot weather affects your home. When the temperature rises and you long for a cool breeze, there is something you can do besides "talk" about the heat.

Flip a switch and you make a breeze that will lower inside temperatures as much as 10 degrees. This 20 degrees or 24 degrees, easy to build home air circulator, does a terrific job.

Complete, easy to follow, step-by-step directions, plus full size patterns take all the mystery out of building the unit illustrated above.

Directions

Directions explain how to build this unit to fit various size windows or attic opening. All metal parts required can be purchased from any well stocked hardware store.

Damage To Marble

MARBLE is not as rugged as many persons think. Oils, citrus fruit acids, alcohol and tobacco, all of which will stain wood, also will stain marble. On the market is a creamy wax which cleans, polishes, and protects marble.

Expansion Of Attics Made Easy

MODERNIZING an attic is a cinch nowadays, with modern building materials. It's a wonderful way to add a room or two.

For a permanent installation, use four by eight-foot panels of Masonite Presdwood, a durable hardboard which was designed for this purpose. They go into place quickly, right over the studs, and you can use them on the ceiling too, cut into smaller pieces.

Beveling Tool

Bevel the edges with a beveling tool, plane, file or sand-block, and permit the adjoining panels to come into moderate contact — the space of a dime, approximately.

These durable, splinter-free panels may be primed and painted, or they may be tinted.

Louver Doors Help

MANY builders of air-conditioned houses today are installing louver doors between rooms to make heating and cooling more efficient.

The louvers permit the conditioned air to circulate freely even when the doors are closed. This helps provide a more uniform temperature throughout the house, doing away with complaints of some rooms being "too hot" or "too cold."

Louver doors of ponderosa pine are available in stock from building material dealers. They come in sizes to fit practically all interior door openings.

A further advantage of louver doors in the home is the texture the louvers offer, helping to dress up almost any decorating scheme, modern or traditional.

Dr. Edwards Retiring From Ministry

AFTER serving the Presbyterian Church in the USA (now the United Presbyterian Church in the USA) on two continents, for a period of 45 years, Rev. David Reed Edwards, D.D., will retire from the active ministry on August 31. He and Mrs. Edwards will make their home near Winston-Salem, N. C.

The announcement was made at a joint congregational meeting of the Portland and Mt. Bethel Presbyterian Churches which Dr. Edwards has served since January, 1950.

Before coming to the two local churches, Dr. Edwards served under the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions in Chile, South America, for 36 years. He did evangelistic itineration, served as a professor in the Union Bible Seminary; also principal of the Mission School in Valparaiso.

Mrs. Edwards did clinical work among the women and children, held health institutes, and supervised the hostel for university students in Santiago, Chile. They returned to the states in 1949 for health reasons.

Newark Native

Dr. Edwards was born in Newark, N. J., on Feb. 25, 1888. He graduated from Newark High School in 1905 and Lafayette College in 1909. He received his B. D. from Princeton Seminary. He also holds an M. A. from Princeton University and a D. D. from Washington College.

Mrs. Edwards is the former Dorothy Rolph of Newark. They were married on May 21, 1913.

Dr. and Mrs. Edwards had four children, all born in Chile. Their only son, David, died at the age of four and a daughter, Mrs. Leonard Robinson, was killed in an automobile accident in Santiago, Chile, in April, 1954.

They have two other daughters, Mrs. Oren McLain, of Winston-Salem, N. C., and Mrs. Calvert Knight, of Falls Church, Va. They also have five grandchildren. Their oldest grandchild, David Robinson, recently arrived at the home of his grandparents from Santiago, Chile. In the Fall he will attend school in the states.

The two churches will hold a dinner in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Edwards on June 17 at the Pavilion near Harmony, N. J. The dinner is being sponsored by the Couples' Club of the Portland Church.

Residents In Search Of Bear In Sciota Vicinity

SCIOTA—There's a bear in these here hills—but he may not be with us long. Starting Sunday night, the animal has been invading bee hives at the Loren Fenner farm here.

Dr. David R. Edwards

Residents Must Follow Ordinance

A SPOKESMAN for the Stroudsburg Board of Health last night reminded residents that a borough ordinance requires all householders to have approved garbage containers.

They must be water and wind proof with tight fitting lids so that the contents cannot be removed by rodents or animals.

Truman Burnett, board secretary, said all residents must comply with the ordinance by the time advertising of it in The Daily Record is completed. A fine of $10 faces violators.

Stroudsburg Board of Health

Reception Committee

He returned Monday night. Last night a reception committee, armed to the teeth, was waiting for him.

So far, the bear has confined his attentions to the bee hives, but area residents aim to get him before he gets any more ideas.

HARRY FREEDMAN is busting out all over since his return from the Presbyterian Hospital in New York City. And the owner of the farm down Columbia, N. J., way has reason to be. While reclining in his hospital bed in the Gotham, Harry, never one to let his mind lay idle, came up with an idea which will give boxing a needed shot in the arm and also an opportunity to prospective light candidates.

Freedman, who loves the fight game as well as anyone who has ever come close to the squared circle, plans to run a series of amateur bouts from the bantamweight division right through to heavyweights.

From this series of battles, in which champions will be crowned, Freedman will pick 10 candidates and train (if the youths are interested) them for a professional career. The New Jersey Impresario, who has knocked around with boxing big wigs for years will go all out in an attempt to get "new fighting blood" in the fight-for-pay ring.

"I'll feed them, house them and give them the run of the place," Freedman told this writer.

"Furthermore, they'll have the benefit of an expert trainer, Steve Kukol, a former Golden Glove lightweight champion, who is now a year-around employee of mine," Harry said.

This is a big break for boys who have often eyed boxing but who have failed to come in contact with the right parties.

Freedman plans to contact sports editors in Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown and Scranton and set up a get-together to officially put his idea before the sports world of the area.

"There are a lot of good boys interested in fighting in these cities and their surrounding towns," Freedman evaluated.

"We hope to give them the opportunity through the press to come up and see our training plant," he said.

"We have ample room for roadwork, a first-class ring and lights, if needed for night boxing," Harry noted. "I hope this project is worthy enough to bring about the makings of a few contenders for championships in years to come."

"If we get the prospects who show potential then I will go all out to make sure he gets a head start in professional boxing," he concluded.

In Kukol, Freedman has the ideal man for such a venture. Steve, still in wonderful condition at 175 pounds today, has fought the best. Twice he lost decisions to Sugar Ray Robinson when both boys were fighting in bootleg clubs around the nation.

A native of Binghamton, Steve did most of his professional boxing in Syracuse, Binghamton and Rochester. However, he has fought all over the country under more names than a telephone directory gives out with.

When he won the Golden Gloves title in 1938, Steve represented a Binghamton newspaper and fought his way through 10 foes before claiming the crown.

"Mr. Freedman has a wonderful plan worked up," Steve said, "and I am very happy to be a part of it."

"My duties will be to screen the boys and eventually get them in shape for the amateur bouts. Afterwards when we find some who are inclined to have fighting hearts and a boxer's makeup, I'll work overtime to get them ready for professional boxing," he said.

It is a good combo working at Harry's Farm, businessman Freedman and a good tool of the trade, Kukol.

Freedman also has the boxing knowhow, having fought many times before he decided the trucking business was his vocation.

Like his past where success bubbled all over, it is a good bet that Harry's next venture will reap some harvest for a boy who has boxing eyed as a career.

Tigers Fire Tighe, Name Norman Pilot

BOSTON (AP)—Nice guy Jack Tighe was fired Tuesday as manager of the last-place Detroit Tigers and the club dug into the minor leagues for a new field boss.

He is Bill Norman, a 47-year-old jack-of-all-trades who has been a scout and manager in the Detroit system about five years, most recently as manager at Charleston, W. Va., in the American Assn.

Tighe, 44, had the manager's job less than two seasons. Named to succeed Bucky Harris after the 1956 campaign, Tighe directed the Tigers to a first-division finish last year for the first time in seven years. Like many other American League clubs this season, the Tigers never have been able to get rolling.

Tuesday they were dead last, 12½ games behind the league-leading New York Yankees.

General Manager John McHale joined the club in Boston at 4 a.m., summoned Tighe to a meeting just a few hours later and his office in Detroit made the announcement.

Didn't Work Out
"Jack gave it everything he had," McHale said, "but it just didn't work out."

"I made up my mind Sunday that we had to make a change," added the 36-year-old general manager. "I recommended the change to the officers of the club and they concurred with me. We put the wheels in motion immediately."

McHale went to Charleston Monday for a talk with Norman. From there he came to Boston to break the news to Tighe.

"I think our club has greater potential than it has shown to date," said McHale. "That potential wasn't being realized so we made the change for the good of everybody concerned."

Tighe, a popular manager who frequently talked himself into tough situations, said he was relieved at the news.

Somewhat Surprised
"I'm surprised, to a degree," he added, "but not too much, though. You sit and wonder—when your club doesn't perk up you know there might be a change. Right or wrong, that's the way it always has been and that's the way it will always be."

Norman played 18 seasons of professional ball mostly as an outfielder. Twice in 1931 and 1932, he had brief flings with the Chicago White Sox. He joined the Tiger system in 1954 and subsequently managed farm clubs at Little Rock, Terre Haute, and Charleston.

Norman joined the Tigers in time for Tuesday night's game here and Tighe planned to return immediately to his home in Springfield, Mich. McHale said the club has offered Tighe another job in the organization and it is likely that Tighe, who already has some 20 years with the Detroit system, will accept it shortly.

Termed Rough Course

Tulsa Links Seen Presenting Challenge To Open Foes

By Will Grimley
TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Southern Hills got a shave Tuesday but the course looked like a hilly, sand-toothed ogre to the world's premier golfers gathered for the 58th National Open Championship starting Thursday.

"If the wind continues to blow four guys won't break 290," glumly predicted Dick Mayer, the almost forgotten defending champion. "I think a score of 287 will win it—and there'll be some 100's before the week is out."

Dr. Cary Middlecoff, a two-time winner and one of the primer favorites, called the course "the toughest I ever have played on."

"It's harder than Oakland Hills," Middlecoff added, referring to the Detroit monster where Ben Hogan won and only two players had a sub-par round in 1951, "but it's fairer."

Snead Likes 287
Sam Snead said, "I'll take 287 and sit on it." Jimmy Demaret, Doug Ford, Ken Venturi and Arnold Palmer forecast a winning score of 284-four over par.

According to the howls of Snead, Demaret and others who fought the tenacious Bermuda rough in early practice rounds, the U. S. Golf Assn. Tuesday ordered the rough cut down to four inches in the entire area inside the ropes.

"That means," said Mayer, "you lose only half a stroke instead of a full stroke when you wander off the fairway. But the frog hair around the greens is still so deep that a monkey can play it as well as a man."

Mayer, who acknowledges that he has been unable to regain top form after winning close to $100,000 last year, picks Snead and Middlecoff as the players most likely to take off with the championship.

Favors Sam
Robert Trent Jones, the famed golf course designer who helped toughen up Southern Hills for this test just as he has done in nine of the last ten Opens, also favors Snead "because he has the game tailored to the course and his mental attitude is perfect."

Jones considers it a five-man battle with Snead, Hogan and Middlecoff rating high among the old guard and Ken Venturi and Masters Champion Arnold Palmer posing the strongest threat of the brash young newcomers.

Cubs' Power Clips Braves

CHICAGO (AP)—Five Chicago home runs, two by Bobby Thomson, Tuesday produced all the Cub scoring in a 9-6 defeat of the Milwaukee Braves and Lefty Warren Spahn.

Spahn, suffering only his second setback after eight victories, also yielded a three-run homer to league-leader Ernie Banks, his 18th; a two-run homer to Cal Neenan; and a solo homer to Dale Long.

Hank Aaron's three-run homer in the third finished Cub starter Dick Drott, but failed to avert Milwaukee's fifth straight loss.

The victory went to Glen Hobbie, who allowed 1 run on 6 hits the last seven innings for his fourth verdict against five defeats.
